Dear chevre,

There is a midrash that I love from the Talmud,* on B'midbar 7:9, that notices a repetition in the Torah text. We are told that "to the children of Kehat, [Moses] gave nothing, because on them was holy work, lifted on their shoulders." The midrash asks: if the text already says that the work was "on their shoulders," why the seemingly extraneous word "lifted?" Citing proof texts from Psalms and Isaiah where the word lift is connected to the act of singing (raising voices, raising a song), it answers by saying that in this verse, lifted signifies that the b'nei Kehat were singing. Song can lift burdens, and song can raise Torah.

Song can organize our muscle movements, help us move in a rhythm for a repetitive task, and synchronize large groups of people for efficiency. Song can focus and express emotion. Song turns work into pleasure and empowers us to connect ethically and empathetically with one another.

When we could not meet in person, communal song waned. Our burdens, unlifted by song, got heavier. Being able to sing again, live with other humans, has often moved me to tears of gratitude this past year. It is irreplaceable. To gather in our sanctuary and share song is a gift once more within our reach.

This month, there are two particular services where the sound of our combined voices will lift us all. At our tricongregational Tisha b'Av in Andover on Saturday, August 6, the music of our Megillat Eicha, our choir, and our traditional Ma'ariv melodies are poised to both express and lift the heaviness of destruction, exile, and self-betrayal and help us explore Jewish resilience. Six days later, Rabbi Micah Shapiro will lead us in a singing-out Shabbat "Nariya" evening service on Friday, August 12, sponsored by our Music Committee. Come sing together. Let's lift up holiness through song and enjoy one another's presence.

When we could not meet in person, communal song waned. Our burdens, unlifted by song, got heavier. Being able to sing again, live with other humans, has often moved me to tears of gratitude this past year.

On both the saddest day of the Jewish year and on its most common and most joyful holiday, our song has work to do.

Looking forward to singing with you!
Cantor Vera

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Fellow Congregants:

Summer is for relaxing, reviewing the previous year, and preparing for the new one. I usually close out the summer with a beach vacation. This may not be in the cards this year, but since it is summer, I am taking stock of my own physical and emotional house. I'm also reviewing where we are as a temple, and I'd like to share these thoughts with you.

As August begins and summer starts to wind down, we at Temple Emanu-El are readying the building for our big fall events: the High Holy Days and the return of religious school students and teachers. A huge thank you to Don, our custodian, and Lisa, our executive administrator, for all they do to keep the temple running smoothly, both inside and out, all year long. Our committees are organizing fall events, and Cantor Vera is preparing the variety of High Holy Day services we'll be offering. We could use your help! If you are interested in assisting with High Holy Day preparation (ushering, handing out/delivering prayer books for those who won't be in person, etc.), please reach out to Lisa (office@TempleEmanu-El.org or 978.373.361) or me (president@TempleEmanu-El.org). We look forward to hearing from any members interested in volunteering.

Just a few weeks ago, we wished Nancy, our former executive director, best wishes as she joined her husband, Michael, in retirement. It was tough to see Nancy leave the office at the end of June, but we know that it wasn't really goodbye; it was l'hitraot, see you again soon. Nancy has been such a committed part of our Temple Emanu-El community. We were blessed to have her in our lives for over twenty-four years, and we look forward to seeing her in the greater community, hearing about the vital Vitamin D she has gotten vacationing down south, and gushing over pictures of her beautiful granddaughter. To me, Nancy was so much more than just our executive director. She had her finger on the pulse of our community. She knew the details of our individual lives. And, personally, she was a great sounding board and support system. L'hitraot, Nancy. We wish you all the best on your next adventures, and we appreciate all you have done for us.

If you haven't already met Lisa Anthony, our new executive administrator, I encourage you to call or email her and introduce yourself. Lisa is quickly getting to know our membership and is already deep in the details of the day-to-day operations at the temple. She is easy to talk to and incredibly friendly. I hope you will reach out and welcome her to our family. She is excited to join Temple Emanu-El and looks forward to getting to know all our members.

As we start a new fiscal year (July 1), it is also time to look at our financial wins and our challenges. We have been blessed by the good planning of the temple's forebears, who established an endowment for our congregation years ago. Unfortunately, we have needed to rely on this endowment in recent years to pay for the upkeep of our physical structure. Additionally, our revenue from dues does not cover the full breadth of the costs of running a building our size, even with our small (and mighty) staff. If you see your dues bill and wonder Where does that money go?, feel free to reach out for details. In short, just know that we are fiscally responsible and do our best to offer the most to our congregation on a very thin budget. We do not have any fluff in our budget, and we need revenue beyond dues to maintain our level of offerings. Every donation to the Jewish Continuity Fund makes a difference to our financial well-being. I encourage you to join me in making pledges to celebrate the various simchahs you encounter by contributing to the Jewish Continuity Fund. These donations have a multifold benefit: you support the temple, the person who has the simchah appreciates your recognition, and you feel good for supporting your Jewish community. It's truly a win-win-win.

Stay cool in these hot days and enjoy the remainder of your summer. It won't be long before we see the Torah scrolls wrapped in white for Rosh HaShanah. I look forward to seeing you soon.

L'Shalom,

Jenn Lampron
President

Jacqueline Lampron Bat Mitzvah Project

While preparing for my bat mitzvah, I interviewed Temple Emanu-El member Shirley Holber. Mrs. Holber told me about her upbringing and life in Haverhill over the last ninety-nine years. She has been a member of Temple Emanu-El since it was founded in 1937. Prior to that, she was a member of one of the congregations in the Mount Washington area of Haverhill. I appreciate the conversation that I had with Mrs. Holber and hope you enjoy hearing our discussion.

Honor Your Father and Your Mother

It is a widely observed Jewish tradition to commemorate the passing of a loved one by memorializing those that have departed with a yahrzeit plaque on a dedicated memorial wall.

At Temple Emanu-El, these plaques are lit on the yahrzeit, or anniversary of death, and for Yizkor services.

Plaques are inscribed with the name of the deceased in both English and Hebrew as well as the date of the person's death. They are available to view whenever the sanctuary is open.

The one-time cost of the plaque is $300. To purchase a plaque in honor of a departed loved one, please contact Lisa or Cantor Vera at 978.373.3861.
